

Get Your Farm Idea Noticed!

Sept. 7 is deadline for Farmer Idea Exchange Contest

08/03/2007

Show off your farm innovation skills!

Enter the Farmer Idea Exchange Contest and your idea could become one of 15 innovative farm ideas to be showcased as part of the 2008 American Farm Bureau Federation Convention.

All entries must be submitted by September 7, according to the entry rules and information.

Visit the Farm Bureau website find links to: Rules and Information Form of Originality Authorization and Release Entry Form, printable or online State Coordinators Contact Information

The Farm Bureau holds the contest to help discover new and helpful inventions, equipment modifications, innovative crops, marketing techniques, management systems and farming practices developed by farmers and ranchers. It gets Farm Bureau farmer and rancher members together to share their innovative ideas and help other farmers and ranchers find new ways to help their farming ventures from cutting costs to improving efficiency.

The American Farm Bureau Federation sponsors the Farmer Idea Exchange Contest.

Up to 15 ideas from around the country will be selected to display their winning idea as part of the 2008 AFBF Convention in New Orleans, Louisiana, January 13-14, 2008. This is an informal presentation of the innovations and practices that farmers have developed and used. The winners selected will receive up to $1,500 toward expenses incurred to participate in the AFBF showcase.