

Fall U-Pick Farms from Local Harvest

U-pick farms are a great example of agritourism. Get our picks for a farm to visit this fall.

Learn More About Agritourism

Agritourism could be the right venture to help build income for your farm.

Click here to get more ideas; read Barbara Sheridan's "5 Ways to Make Money in Agritourism"
Where will you buy your pumpkins this fall?

We can think of no better place than a local farm offering fall produce and pumpkins you can pick yourself. When it comes to agritourism, U-pick farms are a great example. And fall is one of the best times of year to visit a local farm.

You'll get a chance to explore local examples of agritourism, fill your car with farm-fresh produce for autumn eating and decorating, and entertain your kids (or the kid in you!) You'll have a blast and make a local farmer's day, too!

Find More Local Farms

You'll find local farms and more when you visit Local Harvest.

Click here for more on Local Harvest. Listed below are a few picks of U-picks; find them all and more on the Local Harvest website.

Abma Family Farm (Wyckoff, N.J.) Check out the link "What's in Season" to find information about this farm's Fall Hayrides and Pumpkin Picking and more.

Wilson Banner Ranch (Clarkston, Wash.) Every Saturday in October this ranch offers family-oriented events to celebrate harvest.

Walters' Pumpkin Patch (Burns, Kan.) This action-packed farm offers much, including an invitation to ride the haywagon to the pumpkin patch to find a perfect pumpkin for everyone in the family.

Lynchburg Grows Urban Farm (Lynchburg, Va.) Pick pumpkins and enjoy the educational atmosphere Saturdays through Oct 27 at this extra-ordinary farm.

Shady Brook Farm (Yardley, Pa.) The entertainment calendar at Shady Brook is bursting at the seams at with pumpkin rides and scary activities, too.

Bloom Where You're Planted Farm & Pumpkin Patch (Avoca, Neb.) Fall for our "country charm" is the invitation from these farmers -- group outings and field trips are just two of their offerings.

Kathy's Pumpkin Patch (Donnellson, Iowa) Wagon rides, a pumpkin patch and a really awesome-looking maze are among the offerings at this farm.

Clary Ridge Ranch (Fair Play, Calif.) For a change of pace, pick walnuts on select days in October at this West Coast ranch.

~ HF editors